

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A system for triggering restraining means which has at least one impact sensor and at least one pedestrian-impact sensor, signals being transmitted from these sensors to a processor which is configured such that the processor triggers the restraining means as a function of a linkage of the signals.